

La Crosse County is busy printing ballots for the next recall race...

It wasn't until yesterday, after the deadline for seeking a primary recount had passed, that the county could start preparing ballots for the main recall election on August 9th. County clerk Ginny Dankmeyer expects demand for ballots in the 32nd District Senate race to be high, following the turnout for last week's Democratic vote. She predicts it could get up to 40 per cent.

Absentee ballots will be mailed out starting on Monday. That's also when voters may start casting absentee ballots at municipal clerk's offices.
