

Governor Walker freely admits he's trying to make the DNR permit process more business friendly. That's at the root of his plan to streamline things at the agency

Legislation under consideration in Madison would, among other things, limit public input on permitting and give automatic approval for permits if the DNR doesn't rule on them within 30 days.