

City Says Bliss Ready by Weekend

Sunny and in the 60's today. Might be the perfect day to open a certain road that winds up to Grandad Bluff in La Crosse. Not quite yet, apparently. The La Crosse city public works department says Bliss Road most likely won't open until Friday. Maybe Thursday. Repairs on the road that washed out last summer are generally complete. But crews were cleaning ditches yesterday and will have to do some street sweeping and then paint the center line. No ribbon cutting planned for the opening, more like a simple barricade-moving, says public works.
