

Things to do if you're a deer hunter in the woods tomorrow and see a cougar reported to be prowling about in the woods in Western Wisconsin.

1. Take a picture. The DNR would love some more evidence of the big cats in the state.
 2. Hope that it wanders off on its own or make some noise to scare it off; cougars are pretty wary of humans.
 3. Be thankful that you don't look like a cougar treat dressed in blaze orange.
- Things not to do:

Ed Culhane, with the Wisconsin DNR. He insists there's very little danger for hunters because of a cougar in the woods.