

City Pleas for No Storm Sewer Dumping

Tuesday, 22 May 2012 11:56

Changing the oil and dumping it in the street? Don't do it. The city of La Crosse is warning against dumping into the city's storm sewers. The storm sewers run directly to the river and pollutants go to the Mississippi untreated. Along with obvious prohibitions against dumping oil and other very clearly toxic substances into storm sewers, the city's rules against dumping also include soap of all kinds, human bodily waste, and lawn clippings.