La Crosse city hall is staying mum on a couple of different investigations. Municipal prosecutor Pete Kiskien and community development administrator Lianna Escott were suspended from their jobs with pay back in late May. We've been told that whatever they've done is still under investigation. But the investigation appears to involve the pair's romantic relationship. Also, police say they have nothing to add on the Petras double murder that occurred downtown on September 15th. Paul and A.J. Petras--father and son--were shot to death inside May's photo on Main Street in the middle of the day. Thousands of dollars in reward money has been raised to help generate leads in those killings.
