

Plan on more than voters at the polls today. Both Democrats and Republicans will have observers out and about and joining them, members of the Department of Justice and Criminal Investigation. It's nothing new says state Attorney General, J.B. Van Hollen.

\(Click for Audio\)

And that confusion stems from the Voter I.D. law that is still in the court system. Van Hollen says if you have questions, your local poll workers are well trained to make your voting experience a simple and fast one. DOJ teams will be assigned to 13 locations around the state including La Crosse.