

Man Convicted In Bar Stabbing Gets Delay In Sentencing

A sentencing related to a La Crosse bar fight has been postponed until later this week...

The defense attorney for Anquin St. Junious has been granted more time to determine the wishes of the man stabbed by St. Junious last December. The apparently accidental stabbing of a bartender at John's Bar occurred while St. Junious was trying to attack a third person. The D-A's office may recommend two years in prison for St. Junious. Sentencing had been scheduled for last Friday, but attorney John Brinckman says there are conflicting statements about whether the victim agrees with a two-year sentence.
