

'It's gotta stop'...

That's what one La Crosse County supervisor says about the glut of styrofoam in the community. Sharon Hampson would like to ban the use of foam containers and other products that end up in landfills and don't decompose. Hampson tells fellow members of the Sustainable La Crosse Commission that this area could become a leader in the elimination of styrofoam goods. She says she has heard local government workers promise to replace styrofoam with other materials...but they don't actually do it.
