

We've learned this week that one of La Crosse's mayoral candidates has a history that may hurt him in the race. Tim Kabat this week confirmed that he had filed for bankruptcy protection in recent years. We asked his opponent Doug Farmer if there might be a voting history that could come back to bite him after spending decades on the city council, the county board and the school board

\(Click for Audio\)

Farmer figures he's cast about thirty thousand votes during his time in local government.