

Both candidates in the race for La Crosse's third district council seat agree with the need for fixing up neighborhoods in the city. Nic Breidel and Ryan Cornett also agree on the need to be conscientious about budgeting in city hall. But Cornett says there are differences between the two of them

\(Click for Audio\)

Breidel says he's taking the race plenty seriously and criticizes Cornett for being a political climber

\(Click for Audio\)

Both men face off in one of three council races on Tuesday's ballot that lack an incumbent.