

Transit Center: No Actual Transit Until August

Monday, 14 June 2010 17:51

It's big. it's new. It's got a big, two-story tunnel going through it's middle. But the transit center in downtown La Crosse isn't quite finished yet. That's why MTU chief Keith Carlson says he wants to wait on changing bus routes to include the new center. He especially wants to avoid having busses drive around the cranes that will be installing a green roof on top of the seven story building. So switching busses to the center won't happen this month as hoped. Carlson is thinking a grand opening for the bus depot and upper living spaces will happen at the same time sometime in August.