

A new boiler is online at Gundersen Health System. And the savings from it's use will be huge. Jeff Rich who is overseeing the project says in addition, the biomass boiler project incorporates a steam turbine. Steam runs through the turbine and turns a motor to produce electricity.

\(Click for Audio\)

Not only will the biomass boiler save the organization an estimated $500 thousand a year, it will help them reduce carbon dioxide and coal emissions in the community.