

A ten year lease with possible extensions on the way for a facility that's struggled to reach its goals. That's what's been approved by the La Crosse city council's finance committee, giving the Eco-Park time to fundraise towards plans to build environmental playscapes in Myrick Park. There are critics. Like Cathy Van Maren, saying the park is a tad elitist

The new lease comes with a couple of potential ten year extensions.