

More bad news on Wisconsin's economy and jobs outlook. The Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia's latest index ranks Wisconsin 49th in the nation for economic growth. Senator Jennifer Shilling says the proof's in the pudding.

\(Click for Audio\)

The Philadelphia Fed data is from its monthly state by state index of leading economic growth indicators, and is meant to predict how the state's economy will grow in the next six months.