

Flood Named As New Vets Officer For La Crosse County

Monday, 09 September 2013 20:07

A change in command is taking place at the La Crosse County veterans service office...

Iraq War veteran Adam Flood will begin work later this month as the chief veterans' officer for the county. Flood is succeeding Jim Gausmann in that post, and he says a variety of medical, financial, and other services will remain available to vets in La Crosse County.

Flood says he wants to reach out to vets of all ages, and to their families, to make sure that they can get access to important services.