

Wait for Burrito Sparks Fight, Drug Arrest

An apparent Chicago drug dealer picked the wrong place and time to get in to a fight. Cops say Jesse Stringer fought a guy at bartime this week-end in a Mexican restaurant in downtown La Crosse over his place in line to get a burrito. Beat the victim pretty good. And then was pretty surprised, apparently, at the number of police responding to the fight. Tried to get away a couple of times and couldn't. They found bags of crack, two cell phones, and a thousand dollars in his pocket. The 26 year-old from Chicago faces a number of charges.
