

Proposed drunk driving law changes moving through the legislature in Madison are a beginning. From Mothers Against Drunk Driving, Frank Harris says, plenty more could be done to combat the continuing problem that leads to a couple hundred deaths per year on Wisconsin roadways. He denies that cost of implementing new laws should be a barrier

\(Click for Audio\)

The assembly has sent to the senate several bills that would, among other things, make a fourth OWI a felony. Currently it's a fifth drunk driving arrest that gets charged as a felony.