

Warming Car Disappears From Garage

Monday, 06 January 2014 10:44

It's hard not to want to warm up your car a little when the mercury dips below zero. Especially when it's as far below zero as it is today. Just remember the lesson learned by a woman on the southside of La Crosse this week-end. She, also, wanted a warm car to climb into Sunday morning. So left it running in the garage, unlocked, with the garage door open. The car disappeared. Cops are looking for a 2004 Malibu with hundreds of dollars of softball equipment inside.
