

Meyers Investigation Continues

Thursday, 18 February 2010 07:50

It may be some time before we have the whole story of the last hours of Craig Meyers' life. the 21 year-old WTC student was pulled from the Mississippi Tuesday afternoon after disappearing early Sunday morning. An autopsy will be done on the body but police say that procedure will take longer since water temperature where Meyers was found was around 28 degrees. After the autopsy, police say they'll likely release results of any toxicology report but a full report on the death of Meyers might not be complete for weeks.
