

UW La Crosse chancellor Joe Gow doesn't have a job offer. But he is a finalist in the search for president at the State University of New York, New Paltz campus. One of four. Gow says he'll have to see once he visits the campus whether he'd be a good fit for the job. But, Gow says, it would have to be a very good offer to drag him away from the UW-La Crosse campus. Money, apparently, not an issue in the job decision if it comes to that. The chancellor tells us both the system president and the head of the board of regents have offered to bump his salary and Gow, although appreciative, told them, it's not about the money. Gow's been chancellor at UWL since 2007.
