

Many local leaders don't support Scott Walker. Mayors, school board members, county board supervisors, and even town clerks from all over the state have signed a letter condemning proposed changes to collective bargaining in governor Walker's budget repair bill. La Crosse mayor Matt Harter says he's more inclined to see how the whole budget repair bill turns out before passing judgment. Harter says he'd like to see some agreement on the legislation but, he says, "we gotta change something."
