

Chancellor Joe Gow says UW- La Crosse is facing around $5-6 million dollars in cuts. The entire UW-system.....$250 million in cuts. That's deep says Gow.

The chancellor also says Governor Walker's savings tools will not completely offset the decrease in state aid. This means UW-L will have to reevaluate the possibility of cutting programs and faculty and furthermore, possibly eliminate vacant positions.

UW-Madison will be able to increase tuition to possibly offset most of the cuts, while UW-La Crosse can only increase tuition by five point five percent.....something Gow says they are looking at.
