

The Reverend Jesse Jackson is on a state wide bus tour of Wisconsin today.....talking to students about using their right to get out and vote....and to take shots at the proposed voter i.d bill pending in the state legislature.

Fresh off stops at several rally's at the state capitol during the protests of Governor Walker's budget repair bill....Jackson says he feels with all the cuts coming from the government country wide.....there is money out there somewhere to help students and teachers all survive.

Jackson started his tour yesterday at UW-Oshkosh and will end with a huge rally at UW-Madison. Jackson is tackling issues such as the rising cost of tuition and proposed changes to same day voter registration and voter identification and how these changes affect students.
