

While the open enrollment school program has gained popularity over its 14 years, some area school districts have taken a multi million dollar hit because of it. That's the case in the Sparta School District. Superintendent, John Hendricks.

He says switching schools seems to be a growing trend and the program has increased in the number of students that have decided to open enroll out of their home district....something Hendricks has seen grow over the past couple of years.

The program is open until April 30th.
