The decision has been made...La Crosse's Post Office will lose its sorting facility.

That's according to a release just sent by the Postal Service to a major postal workers union. La Crosse's post office is one of five in Wisconsin which would stop sorting local mail, sending it instead to a larger processing center. The decision would end overnight mail delivery within the city of La Crosse, because all the items mailed in La Crosse would have to go through St. Paul. Post office boxes and window service would remain at La Crosse's post office on State Street.
