

Garbage Rule Delay Could Last Another Month

Could be another month before La Crosse's city council votes on new garbage rule proposals. The council put a vote off on the new garbage regulations for a month earlier a couple weeks ago. The city's Neighborhood Revitalization Commission was supposed to weigh in on the rules. And the idea was to get something on the books before college move-out in the spring. And Commission chair, council member Sara Sullivan says she understands the rush

But Sullivan also thinks she'll need another month to make the best recommendations on the garbage rules that were widely criticized by landlords as being too heavy-handed.
