

Brutus Sniffs Out Crack in Dash

Tuesday, 27 March 2012 08:35 -

---

You can hide your drug stash from the prying eyes of police. But maybe not from the sniffing snouts of drug dogs. La Crosse Cops got 23 year-old Kenneth Jackson at a routine traffic stop this week-end. Smelled some marijuana. Which was all an officer needed, apparently to call out Brutus the drug dog. Brutus got really interested in the dashboard. Turns out, Jackson was using the dashboard as a nifty space to hide the crack he was selling. Cops recovered several bags of crack from behind a dash panel. Jackson has a previous conviction for selling drugs.