

So after the announcement last week that La Crosse Promise Future Centers will open in August in area La Crosse School District schools.....the question now is who will staff these centers and the La Crosse Promise.

Jerry Kember, former superintendent of La Crosse Public Schools, has been serving as Interim Director of La Crosse Promise and has been a driving force behind the organization since its inception. In December of last year, after two years of extensive study and discussions with diverse groups throughout the region, La Crosse Promise decided to go forward with plans to open Future Centers this fall if they could raise $250 thousand for each of the next 3 years. And they did.