

A bipartisan party planned Tuesday night, not far from the State Capitol...

It's the brat and burger party that Governor Walker announced just after winning the recall election last week. About three-fourths of the state lawmakers are planning to attend...with Republicans outnumbering Democrats, about 2-to-1. On a visit to La Crosse on Monday, Walker said a variety of Wisconsin-made brats and beers will be served at the event.

Reporters will be kept out of the cookout...with the governor's office arguing that Walker and the lawmakers would not be able to socialize in a 'relaxed environment' if the media were there.
