

You get the feeling there's not a whole lot of panic in the Walker administration after a Dane county judge Friday ruled the governor's signature union collective bargaining changes unconstitutional. Secretary of Administration Mike Huebsch derides the ruling as liberal activism and "practice court." He says the judge completely ignored that unions were created by statute

Huebsch says, lacking direction from the judge, he doesn't plan any changes in dealing with unions while the appeals process begins.