

Pretty soon, polls will measure the impact of this week's presidential debate. La Crosse democratic party chair Vicki Burke calls polls a snapshot of how voters are feeling at any given time but believes voters are indeed paying more attention to the race with the election less than three weeks away

A new Marquette university poll shows the presidential race virtually tied in Wisconsin. But that was completed before Tuesday's debate.