

Just because the red kettles have been pulled doesn't mean the Salvation

Army is done taking donations for their 2012 goal. As of this morning, the total collected is at $598,229....or $51,771 to go. That means if every person living in the City of La Crosse donated a dollar, the goal would be met.

Julie Nelson with the La Crosse Salvation Army says this time of the year they receive quite a few donations through the mail.