

False Alarm Brings Firefighters, Ticket

Tuesday, 15 January 2013 05:32 -

A woman who just wanted some company from firefighters will pay for it. La Crosse police say the 45 year-old woman pulled a fire alarm at her apartment building because, she said, she couldn't reach her phone and she was having chest pains. It turns out, she wasn't having chest pains and, as she told firefighters, she really just wanted to see them. They say the woman had called 911 the day before and said she'd been shot. The fire false alarm will cost her 177 dollars.