

It's going to take more warmer temperatures and a lot of rain in the next month or so to help the drought conditions in the state. We talked with Steve Huntzicker with the UW-L Extension about the drought conditions.

\(Click for Audio\)

He says more snow from last night and this morning won't help matters much as the ground is frozen almost three feet down.