

Flood Warnings Continue

Thursday, 18 April 2013 10:31 -

State and local officials are keeping a close eye on Wisconsin's rain-swollen rivers, as more rain moves in. Wisconsin Emergency Management's Tod Pritchard says some places could get totals of up to three and a half inches through tonight.

\(Click for Audio\)

The National Weather Service has flood warnings out for 11 rivers and creeks in the southern two-thirds of the Badger State. Trempealeau and Jackson Counties are among the 11 listed areas being watched.