

The Secretary of State job in Wisconsin is becoming one with increasingly dwindling levels of responsibility. The very reason Rohn Bishop says he's running for the office. He wants to work towards getting rid of the job while he's earning the paycheck that comes with it

\(Click for Audio\)

Current state treasurer Kurt Schuller took the same approach when running for office before the last election. He hasn't made much headway in getting rid of the state treasurer's office. But he is close to getting stripped of most of his duties by the legislature.