

La Crosse Officer's Car Tagged at Home

Monday, 06 January 2014 10:44 -

La Crosse police have no suspects yet in an attack on one of their own. Cops say one of their officers has been a target of graffiti vandalism. The cop's personal car was tagged overnight late last week at his southside home. They say he didn't realize his car had been spray painted with images of testicles, a penis, a swastika and a disparaging phrase about police in generaluntil he got to work in the morning. Apparently, the officer thought the black and white spray paint was simply a very stubborn frosting of his windows. .