

The City of Onalaska could be quite wet this afternoon. At least near city hall. Staff has been challenged by Home Depot to a mass Ice Bucket Challenge. Anyone willing to get cold for the cause be in front of City Hall at 1:30 pm today . Home Depot employees will be standing by to help them get cold and raise funds and awareness for the ALS Foundation. Orange buckets will be placed throughout city hall for those that would like to donate. The Ice Bucket Challenge has succeeded in raising millions of dollars for ALS research. It has also spread the word to millions, as many who do not donate still post the video and nominate their friends.
