

Artistic Veterans Make La Crosse Home This Week

Thursday, 21 October 2010 12:27 -

The city of La Crosse has been on the hunt for an artistic community for some time. This week, one such community has been dropped into the city's lap. The national Veterans Creative Arts Festival is in town this week. The last stop in a national competition for vets through VA hospitals. And it's a really big deal, especially for vets, says local Vietnam Veteran, Dan Krehbiel. He says it's terrific to work with talented veterans from across the nation. Krehbeil will be among those performing at Viterbo University to the festival on Sunday. A performance that will be broadcast on Veterans day on PBS stations.
